, Stocks Sag Steadily But Slightly Under Professional Liquidation

GOOD CROP REPORT GAVE THE IMPETUS

Whole Market Lacking in Large Trades.

BONDS QUIET AND STEADY

Reading One of the Leaders and Exceptionally Strong-National Lead Sold Heavily.

NEW YORK, July 12.-The opening stock market was almost uniformly stronger, but gains were moderate. Metropolitan Street Railway alone the active list showed nominal weak-ness, but rallied back to the opening price. Reading was the strongest, open-after the opening, and sagged steadily, but entirely without radical fluctua-tions, and the total reaction was only fractional. Its feature was the pro-fessional liquidation which found its op-portunity in the splendid crop report of

The feeling throughout the commission houses is one of disappointment that the report did not bring a better market. London buying has aided materially in sustaining prices. Ontario and Western held as strongly as anything under steady accumulation. Speculators who have followed National Lead on the way up have been comparatively heavy selfers, and the stock is down a point. The whole market was lacking in large and influential trades. The bond market was quiet but steadier.

The London business did not meet anticipations. London only bought about 1,000 shares on balance. The market continues quiet. Its feature during the last hour was the effort to offer stocks down, to facilitate buying.

ing any effect upon the money market, In fact, money brokers report that many loans, instead of being renewed, are being paid off in whole or in part. Money over the year still loans at 3½ per cent. There is very little demand for short time accommodation.

The figures of the Government monthly crop report, when they became public an hour after the stock exchange ses-sion closed, made the suspicion that had been entertained that they would be of nuch rain in the territories and Arkansas which was suggestive of an unfavorable weekly crop summary at noon today. One prominent local operator bid 956 for 5,000 October soon after the call and another was a heavy buyer of January around 9.58, presumably for Southern account. Philadelphia interests took old crop deliveries.

POLICE ON LOOKOUT

All But Three of Customary Type, But the Exceptions Are Baffling-Curious Case of Miss Pratt.

By means of false labels, ostensibly howing that the trunks on which they were pasted had been passed by the customs officials, a New York gang has been detected in smuggling in dutiable goods. Four persons have been arrested, and the Treasury Department is under the impression that it has discovered a mare's nest of trouble known that the operators on board must have had confederates, and it is even hinted that some of these may be among the customs officials. The inspectors have a slip which indicates that a given piece of baggage has been inspected and passed. A trunk which has been passed this way was sent to the wrong address, and on its return to the wharf an investigation showed it to be full of Sumatra tobacco, Koster, and John Heltman, who received the trunk were arrested and held for the grand jury in the sum of $1,000.

This put the inspectors on their guard, and they soon had two more trunks similarly loaded also from the Kaiser Wilhelm. Later they arrested George Kroncke, the Marconi operator, and Robert Fritch, the assistant hospital stewart of the Wilhelm, as involved in the sminegling. the smuggling.

It is not known how long this has lasted, nor what values have come into the United States by this method. It is pointed out that a single trunk, admitted in this fashion, would mean a fortune to the results.

of a letter received by District Commissioner Macfarland today and signed by Minnie F. Ballinger, of E34 Twenty-eight Street northwest.

The writer says her suggestion is made because an act of Congress has been passed requiring the removal of the remains from the Riggs Farm in Maryland to this city, and because some one has said the last grave should be has said to have inflicted injuries upon her which rendered her unconseteus. To this ylea she demurred, on the ground it was not supported by answer. Justice Gould after hearing argument on the proposition sustained the con-tention of Mrs. Jenny Pope McKay and gave the defendant leave to amend the
